WISCONSIN.

March 6.—In the Assembly this resolutions were adopted: a bill of business on Thursday next for a general adjournment one resolution to the Committees were to meet next.

The services at the Sinai Temple, corner of Indiana Avenue and Twenty-first street, in memory of Adolphe Cremieux, the eminent French statesman who departed this life a few weeks ago, brought out one of the largest audiences ever gathered together in the spacious edifice. Except Sir Moses Montefiore, no prominent English, American or French were received by their co-religionists throughout the world than Adolphe Cremieux. His eminent services in behalf of the Jewish race and its emancipation from the slavery of religious intolerance are indelibly inscribed in the hearts of the peoples all over the world. It is here for easily understood why so immense an audience should have turned out yesterday to do honor to his memory. The fact that the Hon. E. B. Washburne will do an address on the life of Cremieux, whom he has intimately acquainted with Minister Thiers, is added greatly to the interest in the services, and helped to swell the crowd. Nearly all the prominent Israélites in the city were there, and also a number of Christians, prominent among whom were the celebrated German poet Friedrich von Schiller, Mr. Ernest Prusse, and Mr. August Bausch.

The services were opened with a fine musical selection by the choir, which had been strengthened for this occasion.

REV. DR. PETERSEN.

He said four weeks had not yet passed since Adolphe Cremieux departed this life. They were now assembled in this great Western city to pay a tribute of respect to his memory. Wherever Israélites had been assembled to do honor to Cremieux.

A bill of business was introduced by the right that the Israélites here in America honor Cremieux. He was a thorough Frenchman and added lustre to the fame of his nation. The French, learned and noble qualities. Not only the Israélites, but the whole nation of France, ought to honor and revere him. He was a man upon whom the gratitude of the Israélites all over the world was concentrated. An advanced highbrow, advanced years never blushed from the helm when the wind of age blew him.

Adolphe Cremieux was a man of great personal and moral qualities, and was personally acquainted with Cremieux would understand the value of the services of the great man better than he could do, and it would show why he was so esteemed.

I have said that he was a great admirer of Cremieux, who was then young and comparatively unknown. He was a man of great energy and achieved a grand victory for his country and equality before the law. Cremieux showed that he could not be swayed by the law by which the courts could dictate to him or his colleagues of the bar.

I have said that he was a great admirer of Cremieux, not only that he was a great admirer of Cremieux, but also that he was a great admirer of his book. I find the country is now clear and indignant.

It was a few days before the fall of the Empire. He was then a member of the French body of the members of the Left. In an instant he became a member of the Left.

At that time the Israélites in France enjoyed political rights, and were in a position to exchange and win new high in the air, the courage of a lion and the strength of a man.

And when such a peasant as myself was in the crowd, I was in the fray.

A Marked Break in Wheat; and Futures Discounted Heavily.

FINANCIAL.

The drift of currency from Chicago to the West, and from New York to Chicago, ceased last week. New York exchange sold at $200 per $1,000 discount between banks, with a tendency toward par. Loans were in demand, principally on Board of Trade account. Bankers report the market quiet, that mercantile business is not so active as in the past.

Small firms and manufacturers who have been buying for the past three or four years been buying for cash are now giving their notes as their orders have increased, and their need for capital grows. They have become borrowers, which is a good thing for themselves.

The correlative phenomenon of a movement law has already made its appearance. Chicago bank clearings last week were $45,000,000, slightly above the corresponding period of last year. Business in Government bonds and local securities has not been active. Speculation and investment on the New York Stock Exchange by Chicago operators have been moderate. As far as Chicago's business is concerned, there is a marked break yet of the kind that will Miller and lumber houses found in plenty last November. Quick turns and moderate speculation are the rule.

The World says that a great many Government bonds are held in New York on speculation, and this will tend to be so, with the result that the price of the $5 of 1881 is not too high at a difference of 1½ above the 6 of 1880, which mature only six months before the others become redeemable at 100 and interest. The same journal, its financial editor, says that the market is well advanced towards the connection between the Treasury and the money market:

An important matter, now brought into prominence by the action in general business and politics, is the question of the law which compels the Treasury to withdraw its receipts from customs bodily from the port of entry. The Treasury and the banks, however much it may have been necessary when the present law was passed, are now in a position to meet the disturbance of the money market, a waste of financial strength, and an important factor among the causes of the present depression, is far less than that in France, England, or Germany. Beyond the amount of coin which is to be paid in interest or redemption fund for the long-term notes, which should be kept in the Treasury as long as possible, there is no reason to require the same.

A Liverpool letter dated Feb. 21 says: "The wheat market was better yesterday; but we have no great faith in it. Orders are not sent out; and if you hold them begin shipping prices will soon drop again. The large quantities of wheat that would have been required otherwise are not sent out; and as the receipts prove inadequate, holders are in a position to sustain prices. Sales were effected at the quietest prices."

JOHN PORTER'S CASE.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 6.—Matt Carpenter made one of his notable legal speeches on the Fitz John Porter case to-day. Mr. Carpenter is a debater on constitutional questions, and is a member of the Senate. His arguments are always well arranged, careful, and studied, and are delivered with the grace of an accomplished orator. His opponents are as eager to hear him as are his friends. Democrats who for the most part had been in opposition to the trial, now analyze the Fitz John Porter case, and to-day, returned and listened to Carpenter to the end. They derived no comfort from it. Their best lawyers seemed, if face indicates anything, to admit that Carpenter's arguments were well founded, and that the decision of the court-martial, or cannot, in under the Constitution grant a pardon.

WAS UNANSWERABLE.

It is intimated that as good lawyers as Bayard and McDonald may try next week to answer it.

Mr. Carpenter omitted all reference to the testimony, and in an eloquent oration clearly showed why, in his judgment, the people whom he represented do not care for any analysis of that testimony. The Iron Brigade was composed in great part of Wisconsin troops, and the soldiers of that regiment were in the battle of those terrible Bull Run days, lost hundreds of Wisconsin recruits. These men

NEVER HAD FALLEN.

John Porter obeyed his orders, and was loyal to his command and his country.

The graves on every winding hill and steep slope of green Northern hills are the evidence which Mr. Carpenter thought the people of Wisconsin deserved to authorize him to refuse to cast his vote to pardon Fitz John Porter.

It was a hard saying for Carpenter, as Fitz John Porter had been a friend of his until the War. Carpenter improved the occasion, as the orator saw, to turn the climax of his oration with the prophecy that the Democracy were likely to so conduct themselves as to make it necessary for the loyal soldiers of the North to fight for their country.

Mr. Carpenter, in his speech, quoted a statement which the Democrats received with derision and the Republicans with surprise, as to that moment they had been nothing in the political sense.

Porter, who had been a constant attendant during all the long debate, listened to the introductory portions of Carpenter's argument, and then retired from the Senate chamber. It possibly may have been too hard for him to listen to his own condemnation from the lips of his West Point comrades.

THE SPECIAL.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 6.—In the Senate the morning conference was resumed of the meeting of the Fitz John Porter, and Mr. Carpenter addressed the Senate.

Mr. Carpenter said: A careful observer of the tendencies of our time cannot fail to see that in every branch of our Government we are tending towards the centralization and centralization of power and the inside of the Government's tendency is equally strong towards the centralization of power in Congress.

In illustration the Senator remarked: We have established by law and supported for several years at the expense of the people the Department of Agriculture, Mines and Manufactures.
